New directors elected to Hoopeston Industrial Corporation board

Three new directors were seated at the Hoopeston Industrial Corporation's annual meeting Wednesday.

Newcomers Leon Polson and Bruce Burton and former director Roger Ball joined Harold Cox, Ora Baer, Dr. Jim Hardy, Ed Edwards, Don Sherrill and Jean Minick on the board.

The new directors replace outgoing members Dick Read, Glen Sinn and Dennis Neal, none of whom sought re-election to the board.

Neal and Read cited scheduling conflicts as reasons for not seeking their seats. Sinn could not be reached for comment by press time.

Cox was re-elected president for the second year. Others elected for second term offices were Baer, vice president; Sherrill, treasurer; and Minick, secretary.

The directors reviewed actions taken during 1996, including replacing auditor Russ Leigh with Clifton Gunderson Company.

In other business, brochures on the corporation will be available from Central Illinois Public Service Company at no cost to the organization. The board will request 2,500 brochures for its use.

A similar mailing, through the Danville Area Economic Development Corporation, is also in the works. The corporation will pay postage on that mailing to approximately 150 brokers in the Chicago area and northern Indiana, Minick said.

Additionally, Cox said, the organization's industrial property on Route 9 is being advertised in the same area.

The drug was found when the student was made to empty his pockets following an earlier incident, Conolly said.

The corporation was formed in 1953 as a means of attracting industry to Hoopeston. Shares, costing $25 each, were sold to 117 original investors.

The group then purchased approximately 65 acres at Market St. and Route 9. Some of the land was sold for a Casey's General Store and more is slated to be used as a storage facility for the Grant Township road supplies.
